

Langley Sustainable Agriculture Foundation

Join us in protecting and encouraging sustainability of farming in Langley

There are many issues surrounding agriculture in the Lower Mainland, including climate change, environmental impact, and food security, as well as public health, social and economic impacts.

The non-profit, independent Langley Sustainable Agriculture Foundation was created in 2011 to help increase public awareness and education on these important issues as they relate to agriculture, as well as to support local agricultural production and to encourage and support new entrants into agriculture, particularly young farmers.

After several years of organizing its charters, refining its mandates and hosting a number of highly successful workshops in Langley, the Foundation is heading into an exciting future where more of our mandates will become action, where our wish-list will become part of our to-do list.

In order to make this happen, we are looking to expand our board with several more energetic, creative thinkers who have the passion and skills to take us to the next level.

Does this sound like you?

All of our current board members are volunteers and come from various areas of expertise: agrologists, college students, farmers, communications specialists, educators and finance professionals. We hold 10 monthly board meetings a year that are held to a strict 2-hour limit, and two special workshops that require some participation by board members.

If you're interested in finding out more about us, please go to our website at www.langleysaf.ca. And once you're convinced you want to get involved, please fill out the following form and submit by Feb. 15, 2017. We will be electing new directors at our March 2017 Annual General Meeting. We welcome anyone wishing to sit in on a Board meeting before then.

Thank you for your interest.

Brenda Crockett, LSAF Director and Chairman of the LSAF Nominating Committee
